Special Dispatch to The Star.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The Nationals lost the opening combat of their series with the White Sox here today by 2 to 1. It was another ninth-inning defeat. The two runs made by the Sox were gifts from the Washington players. The winning run was forced over the plate in the ninth inning when Dumont hit Buck Weaver in the ribs and forced Ray Schalk across the plate. Griffith used three pitchers during the afternoon, while Manager Rowland used Wolfgang alone. Harper pitched five innings and was replaced by Shaw, who stuck it out until he got into real trouble in the ninth. With the bases full Dumont was called on to do the rescue act and he almost saved the day, but lost it again when he hit the batter with the bases filled.

It was a nice, bright afternoon, but not as comfortable for the players or spectators as it appeared to be. A heavy rain for four days had soaked up the field so that it was heavy, and the big grandstand was so damp that every one was chilled to the bone. The players did not seem to have the usual amount of ginger in their work, though it was a close contest all the way through.

Nationals Get Men On.

The Nationals got two men on in the first inning, but nothing came of it. After Moeller fouled out, Judge drove a base on balls. He did likewise, but Milan forced Foster at second and Jamieson popped up another foul to Weaver, and the round was over. John Collins led off the Sox with a single to left field and Weaver tried to put another hit in the same spot, but Foster appeared at second and he was called out. The Sox were going to be able to save the day.

The visitors filled up the sacks in the first half of the fifth after two were out, but they could not get them at the right time. It was not until the eighth that Judge got hold of one that he liked and smashed it to deep center for three bases. Foster rolled out on an easy one to Terry, Milan struck out, and it looked as if Judge would have to go on to third. Jamieson came to his rescue, however, scoring him with a single to right, and the score was tied. Shaw had been going along well in the sixth, seventh and eighth, but in the ninth he was hit by a pitched ball. Felsch bunted to Shaw, who threw high to McBride, who threw to Weaver, who batted for Terry, who was rewarded with a base on balls, filling up the corners. Griffith waited for Dumont at this time, and he came in with a lot of good stuff at his command and it looked as if he was going to be able to save the day. Fournier was sent to bat for Wolfgang and with the count two and two he sent an easy one to right which Moeller had no trouble getting under. Felsch tore for the plate and Dan re-layed the ball to Judge and Joe had it in the catcher's hand waiting for Happy at the plate. The trouble started again when Dumont lost control of the ball. He passed John Collins and the bases were filled again. Weaver came up and was trying to hit his turn for a pass when he was hit by one of Dumont's wild shots, which forced Schalk over with the winning run. Score:
